AIG appoints senior construction industry adviser to aid risk evaluation and management

AIG UK Limited is pleased to announce the appointment of Padraic Conlon as Assistant Vice President – Civil Engineering, working within the AIG Global Marine & Energy division.

“Construction is a significant part of our business, and we are now seeing a surge in worldwide building, particularly in large civil projects (airports, tall buildings, bridges / tunnels) and in the main energy industries” commented Rob Kuchinski, Senior Vice President. “With these projects increasing in scale and complexity, and the demand for and cost of materials and personnel soaring, we made a decision to strengthen our team with the recruitment of a highly experienced civil engineer.”

“We believe that Padraic’s unique skill set will enable us to give our clients an enhanced service through a more complete understanding of the risks that these large-scale projects present. Construction challenges can only continue to grow in complexity and we believe that his experience across projects and geographies will prove to be invaluable to both AIG and our client base. ”

Prior to joining AIG UK Ltd, Padraic spent 20 years delivering a diverse range of construction projects in China, South East Asia, Africa, Middle East, Europe and the Americas, and has gained a unique understanding of Heavy Civil Infrastructure, Power Generation, Oil & Gas and Port & Mining Projects.
